PART I · THE OBSERVATION

A FOUR-YEAR WALK, MEASURED AT THE CLOSE

One hundred thousand dollars seeded in December 2021, marked daily against the S&P 500 total-return line. The bronze band names the bear window of 2022.

FIG. 1 · EQUITY WALK · STRATEGY C VS SPY

Fig. 1. Cumulative equity on a $100,000 seed, marked monthly. Solid line · Strategy C. Dashed line · SPY total return. The bronze band names the 2022 bear window.

$ 100,000 seeded December 2021 became $218,240 at the close of April 17, 2026 — an observation, not a prescription. Over the same window, a passive SPY position reached roughly $151,100. The spread is wider than in any single calendar year.

Drawdowns were not avoided. They were survived. The maximum peak-to-trough observation was -23.82%. SPY's was -24.50%. The difference is narrow — the measured value of the record is less about dodging the tail and more about the path the book took through it.

SHARPE

0.94

Observed across the full window — not annualised into the future.

BETA VS SPY

0.87

Observed beta over the observation window. A book that moves with the market, not ahead of it.

REBALANCE

2021-12-01 through 2026-04-17. 53 monthly rebalance dates.

PART II · THE ANNUAL LADDER

YEAR BY YEAR, READ IN SEQUENCE

Each row is a calendar year observed in isolation. Sparklines normalise in-place — peaks read against the row's own distribution.

PART III · RISK DASHBOARD

READINGS AROUND THE PATH

Four risk dimensions, sampled over the observation window. Methodology notes sit on the right rail so the page reads as a single object.

PART IV · EDITORIAL

WHAT THE RECORD SAYS, AND WHAT IT DOES NOT

A single sentence the research desk is sitting with, and the quiet catalogue of items no backtest can see.

A backtest is a memoir of markets past — not a map of markets to come.

— PIVOXQUANT RESEARCH DESK —

WHAT THIS OBSERVATION DOES NOT SHOW

01	Tax drag on realised gains — the record is pre-tax.	04	Regime shifts not present in the observation window — the next four years are not the last four.
02	Personal withdrawals or deposits that alter the compounding path.	05	Live execution latency and partial fills, which the monthly-close record cannot see.
03	Slippage in thinly-traded constituents beyond the 10 bps assumption.
